Two Tenure-Track Assistant or Associate Professor Positions

URL: <https://econjobmarket.org/positions/6243>

Field(s) of specialization: All fields

Position types: Assistant Professor, Associate Professor

Application deadline: November 27, 2019

We are looking for excellent candidates who have a strong background in quantitative methods, contribute to our research in economics and finance, and can publish in the leading journals in economics, business, and statistics.

We will consider applicants with PhD degrees in economics, finance, and statistics. Candidates are expected to teach in our bachelor, master, and/or PhD programs.

The Econometrics group of the Department of Econometrics and OR (<https://bit.ly/31Ltfug>) focuses on the quantitative-empirical and quantitative-theoretical approaches to (primarily) economics and finance. Our research interests range from econometrics and statistics, economic and finance theory, and computational economics and finance to applications in economics, finance, and related fields.

Tilburg University offers competitive European salaries and attractive teaching loads. New colleagues from outside the Netherlands can apply for a tax-free allowance equal to 30% of their taxable salary.

Application instructions:

To apply, please create an applicant account at econjobmarket.org, and upload a CV, a job market paper and three recommendation letters (required). You may upload additional papers and a research statement (optional).

The Departments of Economics and Finance in Tilburg are also recruiting this year. Candidates should apply separately to all departments in which they are interested.

Initial interviews will take place at the 2019 European Job Market for Economists in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, on Wednesday, December 18, and Thursday, December 19, 2019, or via video-conferencing.
